Three Questions

Key Pittman, democratic candidate for United States senator, has made a tour of the state of Nevada, but he has not once explained to the voters his reasons for urging the members of the legislature of 1907 to protect the railroads and permit them to charge whatever the traffic would bear, the policy of those corporations. Pittman, pretending friendship for the people of the state of Nevada today, presents a different attitude than when he appealed to the representatives of the people, about to enact a railroad commission bill, to spare the great corporations that were grinding down the merchants of Reno and, in fact, every town in the state.

Pittman's defense of the railroads took place at a banquet given by the citizens of Tonopah to the visiting legislators. His amazing speech was reported in the Reno Journal of February 12, 1907, which says:

"Key Pittman, an attorney and self declared 'champion of the people,' spoke for the railroads; he said in part: 'What Nevada needs is a lot of good railroads, and not cheap ones. The present railroad rates are cheap enough, let us not lower them. Do not prepare your railroad bills with radical provisions. The state is treated all right by the lines which are doing business today, and we should give them another chance.'

"In direct opposition to the corporation attorney's remarks, Speaker Skaggs of the assembly cautioned the audience against the tendency of some of the prominent Nevadans to throw down the state at a critical time. He said that railroad regulation at present is imperative for the good of the state. Skaggs favored the rate law and the railroad commission bill."

Throughout his campaign Mr. Pittman has remained silent about this rate question.

He has never uttered a syllable about the overcharges of the Southern Pacific in its famous back-haul charge, the excess rate exacted of every person in Nevada, and which has been fought for years by the people of Nevada.

"The present rates are cheap enough," insists Pittman, and it will be noted that he does not exclude the back-haul charge.

Mr. Pittman, in his tour of the state, failed to tell the people whether he was then in the employ of the railroads to defend them and to influence, if possible, legislation favorable to them, or whether he pleaded for high rates because of his sincere belief in the right of a corporation to charge what the traffic would bear.

The railroad commission has done a great amount of good since its organization by members of the legislature whom Pittman endeavored to cajole into throwing over the measure, or, at least adopting an innocuous bill that would permit the railroads to continue the rates then in vogue, and denounced from time to time as "hold-ups."

Had the legislature of 1907 accepted Mr. Pittman's gratuitous advice there never would have been a railroad commission or a rate bill that would have done any service to the people of Nevada.

"I would like to ask Mr. Pittman three questions," said a prominent merchant today: "Here they are:

"First—Were you paid for your Tonopah speech advocating the cause of the railroads?"

"Second—Do you believe the present railroad rates are cheap enough?"

"Third—When did you change your mind about the goodness of the railroad and the greatness of the people?"

Mr. Pittman has ample time to answer.

Satisfying a Personal Ambition

"Pittman the Progressive," is the manner in which the democratic senatorial candidate is being labeled by his own press bureau at Reno. Further than that the democratic press is silent.

Progressive in what? is the question being asked. Heretofore Pittman has never graced a public office in this state. He asked for the United States senatorship two years ago and went down to defeat. Yet he is declared progressive.

From appearances Pittman is willing to stand for any old thing as long as he can satisfy a personal ambition. His paid press agent in terming him "progressive" may have hoped to capture a few votes by the use of that term, but an additional paragraph should have been inserted, explaining the real meaning of the term.

Pittman's past history does not class him as a progressive. Here in Tonopah where he is known for his real worth, he is not even considered half way progressive. He is known to be an advocate of high railway rates, as witness his public utterances in this city several years ago. His stand at that time is not in line with the progressives. Nor has he offered a suitable explanation for his railroad rate advocations.

There are many things that Pittman will have to explain to the voters of his home county before he can secure the majority of the votes, and as he has not evinced a willingness to explain, and instead has continued to attack his opponent in the hopes of drawing attention away from his own lapses, it is a certainty that Massey will receive the majority vote from this county on November 5.

Senator Massey has occupied several positions in official life. He has been willing to work his way to the top from the very bottom. Pittman is different. With one gigantic stride he attempts to secure a seat in the United States senate. With his progressive ideas Nevada is bound to suffer should he be elected. With the known ideas of Massey, Nevada cannot help but reap a just reward for sending the republican candidate back to the body of which he is now a member.

Newlands' Long Distance Speech

"The calm, clear and convincing style in which Senator Newlands addressed the people of Tonopah," according to the Virginia Chronicle, appears to have won many votes for the democratic ticket. The account of Newlands' speech that never was delivered was merely one of the methods used by the democratic press agents in influencing the minds of the public. Accounts of speeches never delivered are sent out and each story contains frequent allusions to applause and the wonderful effect the speaker has upon the audience.

The Virginia Chronicle, in describing the meeting that Newlands addressed, or was supposed to address, but was forced to cancel the engagement on account of sickness, stated that great cheering resulted upon the mention of the name of Pittman.

The speech surely was a great one and should go down in history as one of the greatest American classics as yet undelivered.

Senator Massey has never been forced to secure endorsements from people residing outside of Nevada to boost his campaign. It is the home people who are boosting him and not residents of New York, Missouri or Washington.

The voters of Nye county never knew before what a nice man the democratic candidate for the United States senate happens to be. That is, judging from the reports that appear in the democratic press.

Guggie, despite the knocks of the democratic press, has proved to be the largest contributor to the democratic national fund. The campaign yell now sounds like, "Guggie, Pittman, Wilson—that's all."

Guggie is a valuable acquisition to the democratic ranks, now that he has contributed to their fund.

It is a cinch that Massey will win now. Ray Baker is campaigning for Pittman.

STOP DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR
ITCHING SCALP, AND MAKE THE HAIR GROW

There is nothing new about the idea of using Sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our grandmothers kept their hair dark, glossy and abundant by the use of a simple "Sage Tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of Sage leaves, and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect.

Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves; and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing Sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

This preparation gives youthful color and beauty to the hair, and is one of the best remedies you can use for dandruff, dry, feverish, itching scalp, and falling hair. Get a 50 cent bottle from your druggist today, and you will be surprised at the quick results. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Hadv.
